Fresh from an exhausting yet exhilarating six-day trip to Orlando, Florida, for Global Pet Expo 2012, Camilla Gray-Nelson sits and stays long enough for a chat before she is off and running again.

Petalumans will recognize Nelson's name — or blogname ("Dog Talk Diva") — as a top dog trainer. Her Dairydell Doggie Dude Ranch and Training Center was named in 2011 by readers of the Argus-Courier as the Best Kennel, and her clients come from as far as Sacramento and San Jose. Nelson is author of a new book, "Lipstick and the Leash: Dog Training a Woman's Way," that is getting a lot of well-deserved attention.

"I was overwhelmed by the number of people who sought me out at the reception" at the Pet Expo, she says. "The contacts I made were more important than the sales."

Those contacts, to name a few, included the wife and daughter of Dr. Marty Becker, the popular veterinary contributor to ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" and resident veterinarian on "The Dr. Oz Show," the producer of Lifetime's "Welcome Home" and the producer of "American Milestones with Joan Lunden" on PBS.
